The Greenbrier[®]
AMERICA'S RESORT

The Greenbrier Springhouse is more than just the well-known symbol of America's Resort. It tells a story of The Greenbrier's humble beginnings. The history of this white, domed structure can be traced back to the early 19th century when the area was known for its natural springs that were believed to have healing properties. In the early 1800s, word spread about the medicinal benefits of the mineral springs, and visitors who sought relief from various ailments flocked to the property.

As the popularity of the springs grew, a resort facility was built in 1858 to accommodate the increasing number of guests. The Greenbrier Springhouse served as a gathering point for guests to drink and bathe in the mineral-rich water.

In addition to its therapeutic functions, the Springhouse also held cultural significance. It became a meeting place for guests to socialize and enjoy each other's company. The building's design featured a covered walkway with columns, creating a picturesque setting for leisurely walks and conversations. During the Civil War, the resort and the Springhouse suffered damage due to their proximity to the conflict zone. However, the Springhouse was rebuilt after the war, and the resort continued to attract visitors looking for relaxation and healing. Today, the Greenbrier Springhouse still stands as a testament to the history of the resort and the healing legacy of the mineral springs.

Spring at The Greenbrier

SPRING Mixology

Nothing represents a perfect vacation quite like enjoying your favorite drink any time of the day, and The Greenbrier's beverage team has that experience down to a science. Each restaurant on the property offers unique cocktails, beers and wines, and bars like the Lobby Bar, Twelve Oaks and Tree Tops Café offer additional options at various times of the day.

Café Carleton pours The Greenbrier's private selects that can't be found anywhere else — Woodford Reserve Peace and Justice, Jack Daniels Single Barrel Rye, Yellowstone from Limestone Branch Distillery, a private select from Smooth Ambler Spirits, Swilled Dog, Maker's Mark and more — along with premium brews, wines and spirits. Local breweries, cideries and distilleries, such as Smooth Ambler Spirits, Hawk Knob Ciders, Greenbrier Valley Brewing Company and others allow guests to sample a taste of the region.

The spring and summer are the perfect times to enjoy all these vacation favorites, and our team has presented some of their most popular recipes and adventures for your enjoyment.

Beverage Training Manager and Mixologist Laura Witt has created some beautiful spring cocktails, inspired by the season. "The spring cocktails you will find throughout The Greenbrier are inspired by Mother Nature," she explained. "You will notice the influences of fresh citrus and fragrant florals throughout these easy sippers." From the Lavender Collins, to the St. Germaine Spritz, and from the Clover Club to the Strawberry-Coconut Margarita, these spring drinks can help bring a taste of The Greenbrier into your home, but they're best enjoyed on the porch of the North Parlor, outside on the Chesapeake Lawn or sitting at an outdoor table at The Greenbrier Golf Club, breathing in the fresh, mountain air that can only be found right here in White Sulphur Springs.

WINE TIME

For those who prefer their drinks out of a flute or Bordeaux glass, The Greenbrier's award-winning wine program has you covered. It has achieved the prestigious Award of Excellence since 2016 and has been recognized by Wine Spectator as one of the top 10 wine programs in North America. Whether you are a seasoned wine expert, or just starting to explore the world of wine, The Greenbrier has something for everyone. From wine tastings to educational seminars, the resort offers various events catering to enthusiasts of all levels.

The Main Dining Room offers an elegant menu with wines that were carefully selected to create an unforgettable food and wine pairing experience that will entice your taste buds and leave you wanting more. And if you are a foodie looking for the ultimate dining experience, you will not be disappointed. The resort's Cellar Master, Thomas S. Kirby, has handpicked some amazing food and wine pairings, including The Forum's crispy chicken parmesan paired with their private-label flavorful Chianti and Prime 44's succulent Ribeye Steak matched with a bold and rich Petite Sirah from Caymus Suisun.

Here are some of Kirby's favorite pairings to complement traditional warm-weather dishes that can be sampled at home or here at The Greenbrier:

Appetizers:

Deviled eggs are a perfect accompaniment to an outdoor meal. To pair with deviled eggs, a crisp, dry white wine like Chardonnay or a sparkling wine like Prosecco can be an excellent choice. These wines will complement the creamy texture of the eggs and the tanginess of the filling.

Main Course:

If you're serving ham for your main course, a medium-bodied red wine like Pinot Noir or a light-bodied red wine like Beaujolais can be a great choice. These wines will complement the smoky, salty flavors of the ham and bring out its sweetness.

For roasted lamb, a bold red wine like Cabernet Sauvignon or a full-bodied red wine like Rioja can be a perfect match. These wines will complement the rich, savory flavors of the lamb and add a touch of elegance to your meal.

Side Dish:

Roasted vegetables are always popular in the spring and summer, and they can be paired with a light-bodied white wine like Pinot Grigio or a dry Rosé. These wines will complement the earthy, roasted flavors of the vegetables and add a refreshing touch to the meal.

Dessert:

For dessert, pair a fruit tart or a cheesecake with a sweet dessert wine like Sauternes or a late-harvest Riesling. These wines will bring out the sweetness of the dessert and create a perfect balance between the flavors.

PRIME 44 WEST LOBSTER MASHED POTATOES

MASHED POTATOES

- 10 medium to large Yukon potatoes
- (peeled and diced)
- 3 bay leaves
- 1 lb. butter, for the potatoes
- 1 cup heavy cream, hot
- tt salt and freshly ground white pepper
- 6 oz. soft herbed cheese (recommended: Boursin)
- 4 oz. sour cream

BEURRE FONDUE

- 1 qt. chicken stock
- 4 garlic cloves
- 1 tsp. black peppercorns
- 3 thyme sprigs
- 2 lb. butter, diced and kept cold
- tt salt and freshly ground white pepper
- 1 lb. lobster meat, diced
- ¼ cup chopped fresh chives

Boil the potatoes with the bay leaves until the potatoes are tender. Drain the potatoes well and discard the bay leaves, then mash the potatoes, using a food mill.

Add the butter, hot cream and salt and white pepper.

Fold in the Boursin cheese and sour cream allowing it to melt into the potatoes and set aside in a warm place.

Combine all ingredients, except the butter. Bring to a simmer and reduce by 2/3. Turn down the heat, and start adding the cold butter whisking constantly to emulsify.

Adjust seasoning with salt and white pepper. Strain through chinois.

To finish, gently poach the diced lobster in the beurre fondue. Place the poached lobster on top of the boursin mashed potatoes. Sauce with some more beurre fondue. Garnish with chives.

WHERE GLAMOUR EMBRACES THE ARTS

Opera singer, Margaret Piazza, dazzles at The Greenbrier in May of 1952 • During the 1950s and 1960s, The Greenbrier became a hub for cultural events and performances, attracting renowned artists, musicians, and entertainers. It regularly hosted concerts, plays, and dance performances, offering guests a refined and sophisticated entertainment experience.

RHODODENDRON RETREAT

Visitors assemble at the Main Entrance close to the Rhododendrons in the 1960s. The presence of rhododendrons at The Greenbrier went beyond just visual appeal. This flower held a special significance, representing the beauty, peace, and the natural setting of the resort. Being West Virginia's state flower, it highlighted the resort's commitment to providing a scenic and tranquil setting for guests to appreciate that is still practiced today.

NORTH PARLOR ELEGANCE

The North Parlor, 1950s • at The Greenbrier has traditionally been a social hub for guests to unwind and mingle, where extravagant parties and festivities were held. Presently, this sophisticated space maintains its splendor, preserving the hotel's illustrious past for guests to appreciate. When you visit the North Parlor, be sure to admire the unique portrait of Princess Grace of Monaco (one of two in existence) and a bust of President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

EQUINE EXCURSIONS

A group of 3 on horseback taking in the scenery by the Springhouse • The tradition of riding horses at The Greenbrier can be traced back to the early days when the hotel was first established. At that time, the hotel's guests were predominantly wealthy individuals who sought relaxation and leisure in the clean mountain air of West Virginia. Horseback riding was seen as a perfect outdoor activity that allowed guests to explore the beautiful natural surroundings of The Greenbrier. Over time, horseback riding became a cherished tradition for guests of all backgrounds.

SHUFFLEBOARD: A FAMILY TRADITION

Guests engage in a spirited game of shuffleboard • The game of shuffleboard was introduced to The Greenbrier hotel in the early 20th century, possibly around the 1920s or 1930s. During this time, The Greenbrier catered to both indoor and outdoor recreational activities to keep its guests entertained. Shuffleboard quickly became a favorite pastime among the hotel's guests, which led to a beloved tradition that continues to attract guests and their families today.

DINING IN GRAND FASHION

A couple enjoying a meal in The Main Dining Room, 1950s • In 1948, Dorothy Draper redesigned the Main Dining Room at the Greenbrier, elevating its status as a luxury destination. Her bold design remains influential, embodying sophistication and elegance. Throughout the 1950s, the dining area was known for social events and fine dining by renowned chefs.

A REFINED RENDEZVOU

A couple engage in conversation on the exclusive patio of the Presidential Suite in the 1960s • The Presidential Suite has a long and storied history dating back to its original construction in the early 20th century. It was designed with elegance and regal splendor in mind, offering an exquisite retreat for the world's most influential individuals.

ENTERING THE DRAPER ERA

During World War II, The Greenbrier was requisitioned by the U.S. Army and converted into the Ashford General Hospital. From 1942 to 1946, it served as a medical facility for injured soldiers.

However, following the end of the war, plans were made to convert the hospital back into a luxury resort, blending the property's rich history with the evolving needs of guests seeking a retreat from the bustling urban life. This was where Dorothy Draper's vision came into play.

Dorothy Draper, a prominent interior designer, was famous for her bold use of color, elaborate patterns, and whimsical style. She was hired by The Greenbrier's owners to transform the property into a vibrant and inviting resort. Draper's philosophy encapsulated the belief that interior design could have a profound impact on a person's emotional well-being. She aimed to create an environment that exuded joy, energy, and elegance.

Draper's redesign of The Greenbrier after the war was a grand undertaking. She revitalized the resort's public spaces, guest rooms, and dining areas, infusing each space with her signature style. Bold wallpaper patterns, contrasting colors, and eclectic furniture pieces were her trademark.

On April 19th, 1948, guests and dignitaries gathered at The Greenbrier to witness the rebirth of a national treasure. The resort's restoration to its former glory, combined with Dorothy Draper's artistic brilliance, created an atmosphere of enchantment and elegance that continues to attract guests to this day. The event stands as a testament to the enduring legacy of The Greenbrier and Dorothy Draper's vision of creating a captivating experience through interior design.

SPRINGTIME COMES ALIVE

here is no shortage of activities to enjoy at The Greenbrier no matter the season. Wintertime brings unique offerings, like ice skating and sleigh rides. Fall brings hikes among the autumn foliage and the indoor pool becomes more popular as temperatures drop. There are indoor activities such as bowling, escape rooms, tennis, glass blowing and bunker tours that are available throughout the year. But when the flowers bloom and the grounds of America's Resort turn to a lush shade of green, the outdoors truly come alive throughout the 11,000-acre property during the spring and summer months.

FISHING

With expert guides, waters on and around the property and all the equipment you need, fishing is a wonderful activity to enjoy during a trip to The Greenbrier, and there's no better time than now.

“This is the prime fishing time,” said Joey Miller, Director of Outdoor Adventures at The Greenbrier. “The fish are more active. The water's cooler, and you have perfect water flow.”

While Miller believes most guests are aware of the amazing trophy trout fly fishing offerings available on Howard's Creek, which flows right through the property, and the bass, carp, catfish and panfish available on various likes around the resort, many aren't aware that off-resort fishing is also available. Our experienced anglers know the perfect locations for native trout and bass and can take you to a spot for an unforgettable adventure.

The Greenbrier also offers scenic fishing float trips on the surrounding rivers, which include a gourmet lunch and beverages. To learn more about float trips, scan the QR code.

EQUESTRIAN

The equestrian offerings at The Greenbrier include horseback riding for children and adults of all experience levels, as well as carriage rides. An experienced team of both guides and horses are ready and waiting, and just in time for the spring season, The Greenbrier has added four new horses to its stable.

Karl Diem, Danny Ott, Patty Cole and Miller — who have combined for more than 100 years of experience — recently attended an auction, where they reviewed thousands of horses before selecting four that they felt were perfect for a job at America's Resort.

Cash, a Percheron/Morgan, Romeo, a Palomino and brothers Dean and Dutch, Dutch Crosses, are now part of The Greenbrier team of 29 horses and have done an amazing job helping guests explore the property. Saddle up Cash or Romeo and traverse The Greenbrier property by visiting the link in the QR code below, or let Dean and Dutch pull the carriage through their familiar trails and take in the incredible surroundings.

OFF-ROAD DRIVING

Not all of the horsepower found throughout The Greenbrier comes from the animals themselves. Greenbrier Off-Road Adventures offers some exhilarating adventures on the trails of Kate's Mountain in Polaris RZR's or Jeep Wrangler Rubicons.

A new fleet of RZR's arrived just in time for the spring season. These open four-wheel sport vehicles are designed to traverse the most rugged terrain, and our experienced guides can help drivers through rocks, ruts, creek crossings and steep hills with ease for a two-hour session that can't be matched.

The Jeep Driving Adventure takes drivers on various parts of a 30-mile course that includes rocks, ruts, hills, gullies and mud pits. Available in 1-hour and 2-hour sessions, our highly-trained guides insure both safety and fun for every participant.

ON-ROAD DRIVING

For those who prefer to stay out of the creeks and on the pavement, Greenbrier Off-Road Adventures offers the Polaris Slingshot Driving Adventure. Take a scenic drive through the hills and valleys of West Virginia in one of these 3-wheeled, open-air roadsters that pack 178 horsepower in a lightweight design.

Half-day and full-day rentals are available, allowing drivers to explore the sights around the Greenbrier Valley or travel a little further to enjoy Cass Scenic Railway, Droop Mountain Battlefield, Babcock State Park or any of the other scenic destinations around the Mountain State.

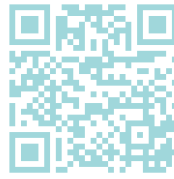

SEGWAY TOURS

Maybe you prefer a little slower pace but still want to take the pressure off your legs. In that case, the self-balancing, battery-powered Segway is perfect for you. No experience is required to use these personal vehicles, which travel up to 12 miles an hour and are perfect for exploring the landmarks and breathtaking locations around The Greenbrier property.

GOLF

The historic Old White remained open throughout the winter just in case some good weather popped up or some dedicated golfers wanted to brave the cold, but the operation is back in full swing with the opening of Meadows Course and Ashford Short Course in late March. The Greenbrier Course is scheduled to open May 6.

Most are aware of the allure of the Old White, which has hosted the PGA TOUR, LIV Golf and more, but the Meadows, completely redesigned in 2016, is another wonderful option. It's challenging but fair and features unique stacked sod bunkers for a memorable challenge.

Many guests aren't aware of the Ashford Short Course at The Greenbrier Sporting Club. The Greenbrier Golf Club offers a shuttle to the 9-hole, par-3 walking course twice a day — once at 9:00am and once at 2:00pm, and golfers have one hour to play as many holes as possible. It's a perfect place to settle a friendly wager, work on your short game or for a young golfer to learn the sport and experience success.

TENNIS

Even before golf first came to The Greenbrier in 1911, tennis was a popular activity for visitors from around the world. That tradition continues today with an amazing facility filled with offerings. America's Resort features five Har-Tru outdoor courts, as well as a 2,500-seat professional stadium available for rental, clinics or lessons. These courts have hosted some of the biggest stars of the game, including John McEnroe, Pete Sampras, Venus and Serena Williams and Maria Sharapova, just to name a few.

PICKLEBALL

The Greenbrier prides itself on providing what guests enjoy, so it shouldn't come as a surprise that America's fastest-growing sport has a prominent spot at America's Resort. Courts and lessons are available inside the Tennis & Fitness Center, and if guests want to enjoy the outdoors while they play, Center Court at Creekside Stadium can easily be converted for pickleball.

RAINY DAYS

While it's difficult to top the springtime weather that can be found in White Sulphur Springs, not every day is going to bring sunshine from start to finish. After all, we have to have the April showers to bring the May flowers. But on those days when Mother Nature doesn't make it easy to enjoy the great outdoors, there's plenty to do inside, as well. Indoor tennis and pickleball, the indoor golf simulator, bowling, yoga, exercise classes, glass blowing, tours and the indoor pool are just a few of the options available to guests.

What is THE STATE SUITE

The Greenbrier's State Suite was completed in 1962 as part of the West Virginia Wing, which was the above-ground addition to The Greenbrier that concealed the construction of the secret underground Congressional bunker directly below. Plans for government use of the facility included the possibility that if the danger of radioactive fallout had passed, rooms in The Greenbrier hotel would be occupied by members of Congress. In that situation, the State Suite was designed for occupancy by the highest level of the leadership: the Speaker of the House, the Majority Leader of the Senate and the minority leaders of both chambers. That situation never developed.

PRESIDENTS & The Princess

The first party to stay in the State Suite included Arizona Senator Barry Goldwater who wrote in The Greenbrier's VIP Register on May 12, 1962: "This small touch of Heaven gets us through the rest of the year."

The next year, Princess Grace and Prince Rainier of Monaco, along with their children Albert and Caroline, spent a week in the suite. Princess Grace commented in the Register: "A wonderful hotel in a beautiful setting equals an exceptional memory."

In late 1963 plans were underway for a summit meeting at The Greenbrier between President John F. Kennedy and French President Charles de Gaulle of France; Kennedy was scheduled to stay in the Presidential Suite and de Gaulle in the State Suite. Due to the president's death in November of that year the meeting never occurred.

Vice President Hubert Humphrey was a frequent guest in the State Suite, often arriving on short notice and sometimes conducting political strategy meetings. In his position he would have been cleared and briefed on Project Greek Island, the code name for the bunker facility. The Greenbrier's staff knew that the Vice-President always liked to find a large bowl of fresh popcorn in the parlor upon his arrival.

Secretary of State Alexander Haig stayed in the suite in 1981.

During the administration of President George W. Bush four winter Congressional retreats were held at The Greenbrier. In 2002, 2003, 2005 and 2008 Vice President Dick Cheney and his wife Lynne stayed in the State Suite while attending those meetings.

SECRETS TO HITTING SOLID SHOTS FOR MORE DISTANCE

By Steven Cox
The Greenbrier Director of Golf Instruction
PGA Certified Teaching Professional

Over the years, The Greenbrier Golf Academy has hosted many Hall of Fame golf professionals, including the face of golf at America's Resort, Sam Snead. Another is former Golf Professional Emeritus Lee Trevino. Distinctively known as one of the greatest ball strikers of all time, Trevino said there is a secret combination to hitting solid shots with repeatable results.

Imagery for Great Clubhead Delivery

Trevino pictured the ball like a clock — 12 o'clock being the front of the ball (nearest point to target) and 6 o'clock being the trailing side of the ball where you set your club at address. When visualizing where to hit the golf ball, he always hit the ball on the inside around 7 o'clock. I typically witness most golfers trying to hit the ball at 6--or even 5 o'clock, causing the ball to slice, leading to loss of distance and accuracy.

Improved ball position, coupled with an inside club delivery, share a symbiotic relationship for optimal results.

The next time you find yourself struggling to make solid contact with your irons, move the ball back toward your trailing foot (right foot for right-handed golfers). By moving the ball back in our stance, we increase our probability of striking through the ball (at 7 o'clock). When the ball moves too far forward in our stance, toward the lead foot, golfers have a greater tendency to hit topped or thinned shots. You need to be able to hit the ball first and the ground second for best contact. This refined ball position, paired with an inside club delivery, is far more conducive for repeatable shots and optimal distance.

THE GREENBRIER CONCOURS D'ELEGANCE

The Greenbrier Concours d'Elegance, which has grown to become one of the premier automotive events in the United States, will take place May 3 – 5, 2024.

MOTHER'S DAY BRUNCH

Celebrate Mother's Day at a place nearly as spectacular as the women we honor on this special holiday, created right here in West Virginia. The sights, smells and tastes of this extraordinary buffet are exactly what one would expect from The Greenbrier's award-winning culinary team, with eggs and pancakes made to order a soup station and lunch selections. Guests will also find brunch favorites like house made pastries, fresh smoothies and salads, as well as Greenbrier specialties like shepherd's pie and Beef Wellington. Of course, the meal is finished with desserts just as sweet as Mom. Let your mother, grandmother, wife — or anybody else who fills this unique place in your heart — know just how proud you are to call her Mom by letting The Greenbrier treat her like a queen.

THE GREENBRIER HALF MARATHON

The Greenbrier Half Marathon, 10k and 5k, returns for its seventh event on Saturday, May 11, 2024!

MEMORIAL DAY WEEKEND

Welcome in summer and celebrate those who made the ultimate sacrifice for our country by spending Memorial Day Weekend at The Greenbrier. The schedule includes a somber Memorial Day Ceremony on the Front Lawn to honor our nation's heroes, along with family events such as Bingo, Oddball Olympics, a Tie-Dye T-Shirt Workshop, Lawn Games, Scavenger Hunts and a Buffet Dinner with all the holiday favorites. The weekend also features entertainment for adults such as cocktail, wine and bourbon tastings and an amazing Farm to Table Dinner. Don't miss this American Celebration at America's Resort.

FOURTH OF JULY WEEKEND

America's Birthday at America's Resort™ is a longstanding tradition filled with family, music, food and patriotism, and The Greenbrier is looking forward to your visit on Independence Day Weekend. Every area of our 11,000 acres will be filled with guests, and events are planned from start to finish to make sure this holiday celebration will long be remembered. We encourage you to visit greenbrier.com for all of the latest information, and we remind you to make your reservations for meals, events and activities now to lock up a spot. We look forward to your visit and thank you for choosing The Greenbrier to celebrate our great nation.

FALL FLAVORS OF APPALACHIA

Fall Flavors of Appalachia is an autumn tradition at America's Resort that celebrates the beauty that fills our region during this incredible time of the year, as well as the flavors that make the area unique. The top Appalachian wineries, distilleries, and breweries join the award-winning cuisine from the kitchens of The Greenbrier for an amazing evening at Kate's Mountain Lodge, overlooking a canvas of colors filling the valley below.

Live entertainment adds to a festive atmosphere, as guests enjoy the company as much as the cuisine. Of course, no Appalachian gathering is complete without some sweet potato pie or apple cobbler to satisfy the sweet tooth.
